Correspondence.

A Woman's View of Things.

BROOKLYN, May, 2, 1888.

I was sure when I advised the girls in my last week's letter to find some way to be self supporting, that I should be speedily represented as opposed to marriage. Some of my exchanges think I have "gone too far," and I have been taken severely to task by several correspondents. But I shall still preach the only doctrine that experience has taught me as being safe, the doctrine of skilled work. The girl who is independent of father, mother, sister or brother, runs very little risk in the marriage relation, always supposing that she selects a healthy, steady and industrious man. If sickness or trouble comes to the husband, or death claims him, and there are children to rear and educate the wife or the widow need not be a beggar, or dependant upon her friends. If there is a sight more pitiful than another, it is a helpless widow with a family of children and no income: though after all that is not quite so bad as a helpless wife with a drunken or lazy husband The last caps the climax of misery. I could not help thinking as I read J. P. Hubert's admirable article in April's Scribner on "The type-writer, its Growth and Uses" what this little machine has done for my sex. It has indeed "created a revolution." "To-day the Remington type-writer is found in nearly every prosperous business or professional office, sometimes scores of them in the same office," says the author. It is found also in all our business colleges, and in our seminaries for young women, and wise parents—in many cases rich parents—mindful of the uncertainties of life, are introducing the Remington into their homes. Expert type writers without phonography can earn from $15 to $20 per week, correct writers, not expert, from $10 to $12. Of course when the operator is also a good short-hand writer, the earnings are much greater. To my mind there is nothing in the whole domain of work more fascinating than type writing I am always happy at my machine. The process is so clean, so rapid, so inspiring, and so mechanically artistic, that the lover of work cannot but be happy. Girls, I say again, learn to do something, and do it well before you think of marriage.

Why is it that the word man has stood for logic ever since the days of Adam and Eve, and woman for the lack of it? I have a practical experience to spread before my readers, and if it does not tend to reverse this judgment a little, then I shall be disappointed. The following formula I have sent broadcast over the land. Does it not seem simple? "Will you kindly give me the name of your literary editor, and inform me if you are accustomed to pay for accepted articles." In every case I enclosed a postal card directed to myself, with the name of the periodical written on the other side, in order to save the busy editor time and trouble. This information was desired for a book which I am now publishing, called "Periodicals that Pay Contributors," a volume which has long been needed by writers. Now yes or no, and Jonn Smith would have been enough. But one third at least of the replies ran like this: "We are not in need of an manuscripts at present," or "We have all the force we need in our editorial department." Now as I was doing thorough work, such answers could not be accepted. And so more paper, more stamps, more postals, and more time and strength had to be pressed into service. But not once has an editor of my sex failed to come directly to the point, and in the simplest fashion. I shall probably be asked if I am ready to affirm that all women are straight forward and logical. Indeed I am not, but I think they are by no means inferior to men in these regards.

The Eastern Blizzard had a strange effect upon travel. Wiseacres prophesied cold and unsatisfactory weather and so it has proved. The Clyde Steamship Co's steamers have been unusually laden ever since. There is no more pleasant or beneficial trip than a short sea voyage on one of those well-appointed and comfortable steamers, where every one, from the highest to the lowest officer, looks out for the safety and the enjoyment of passengers. The pure air, so healing to irritated throats and lungs, the complete change of menu—and surely the Charleston steamers take the lead in tempting bills of fare—often accomplish wonders in the matter of physical restoration. It is astonishing how many physicians are recommending these short sea trips to there patients. The faculty is growing sensible. Ozone is better than medicine every time.

The newest wrinkle in pie crust is to raise it by means of yeast. The following recipe comes from an eminent young physician, who is as good a cook as he is doctor. "There is nothing in all the realm of eatables so genuinely indigestable as the ordinary pie crust," he says. "Wade of flour, hogs lard and salt is a disgusting compound, and one that should be avoided by every sensible person. Boston must have pies—indeed it is doubtful if even cultured Yankees will ever evolute from this fodder of their fore mothers. But the crust is the sticker, the inside is usually harmless. Take as much wheat flour as you need for your pies and carefully work into it equal parts of good sweet butter, and beef fat—not beef suet. Add a little salt Then dissolve part of a Fleischmann's yeast cake in a little warm milk, add tepid milk enough to make a medium batter, and set to rise. When light roll very thin, and you will have a delicious pie crust which will be perfectly harmless, but do not use lard on any account.

Cut This Out and Save It.

Cut this out, save it, and wait until Monday, May 7th, at 10 o'clock; great consolidated assignee sale of 4 large wholesale firms that failed. Clothing, Hats and Gents' furnishing goods; the four stocks to be consolidated and to be closed out at retail by order of the court in 5 days. Positively no one allowed in either of the two immense double stores and no goods sold until Monday, May 7th, at 10 o'clock. On account of the great failure of four large wholesale firms, the two immense double stores in the 6 story double building, running through the block, 787 and 789 Broadway, corner of 10th Street, New York, have been closed for one week, to arrange for a great consolidated assignee sale. Everything will be sold at retail, fifty per cent less than actual cost, as by order of the court, the entire estate of these great bankrupt firms must be settled up within five days. The stock consists of $750,000 worth of fine clothing and other goods. This tremendous assignee sale will commence Monday, May 7th, at 10 o'clock in the two large double stores in the 6 story double building, 787 and 789 Broadway, corner 10th St., New York. As this great sale will only last 5 days, everything will be closed out rapidly. This is the first time a sale of such extraordinary magnitude has taken place in this city. To show what gigantic bargains will be offered we mention as follows: A splendid suit men's clothes, $3.75—all to match latest style, very handsome; guaranteed worth $15. We allow you to keep the $3.75 suit home four days and if you do not think it is worth $15 we hereby bind ourselves to return the $3.75. An elegant pair of men's pants $1.24; these pants are made of fine wool cassimere, cut in latest style, very handsome and guaranteed worth $5 or money returned any time before sale closes. Men's extra fine quality suits, $7.99; guaranteed worth $25.00 or money returned. Just think of the following great offer.—We guarantee the above $7.99 suit to be of the finest material, elegantly made and trimmed; and if you or anyone else say it is not worth $25.00 we hereby agree and bind ourselves to return the $7.99 within five days. High grade goods, meaning equal to the finest quality custom tailor work, in all styles, prince Albert's, cutaways and sacks, over 40,000 different kinds of suits, silk and satin lined spring overcoats, and a tremendous variety of boys' and children's clothing of the finest quality, all must go at at a terrible sacrifice. Men's fur stiff hats, 98 cents; guaranteed equal to a regular $4.50 Broadway hat Large silk finish umbrella, 85 cents, guaranteed worth $3.00. Good quality handkerchiefs, 3 cents worth 25 cents. Good quality socks, 5 cents, worth 25 cts. Silk embroidered suspenders, 10 cents, worth 75 cents. and 100,000 other goods Not space to mention here at the great consolidated assignee sale at retail of 4 large wholesale firms. Cut this out and remember the address 787 and 789 Broadway, corner 10th Street, New York.

N. B. Bear in mind no one allowed in the two large stores and no goods sold until Monday, May 7th, at 10 o'clock, open till 9 at night.

The bearing given to Mayolis avenue is that indicated by the magnetic needle on September 21, 1872, the bearings of the other lines are deduced from a measure of angles on the graduates arc.

Being the same premises conveyed by Phineas J. Ward and wife to Horace Pierson and John H. Chambers by deed of even date herewith, and this mortgage is given to secure the payment of part of the purchase money mentioned in said deed.
